I joined The Collett School in September 2000 and taught English, Drama and PSHCE (Personal, Social, Health and Citizenship Education) until I swapped the classroom for the office of Assistant Headteacher in 2011.

I entered the teaching profession with no previous connections to SEN, and was rapidly won over by the specialist approach it requires. It has become my sole professional endeavor to facilitate the learning for young people with Learning Difficulties and Disabilities.

Insatiably curious about individual learning needs, I am continually researching and evaluating strategies for personalised education and supporting pupils in becoming the best version of themselves.

During the last five years, the school has undergone tremendous and exciting changes, which has led to The Collett School becoming, not only a highly regarded school locally, but also increasingly recognised as a leading force within the special education sector.

Since becoming an Associate Governor in 2014, I am much more aware of all aspects that contribute to the running of a successful school and challenges facing SLT in professional obligations to pupils, staff, parents and a wider community.
